

Kenan Tur, Founder and Director

Kenan Tur, born in 1964, was trained at Adam Opel AG and completed his studies as a working student holding a diploma in Business Informatics.

Kenan Tur worked for General Motors on the implementation of lean management processes, controlling and revision of supply management. As European team manager, he was responsible for strategic supply of specified articles. These experiences and his interest for business ethics paved the way for the development of the first electronic whistle-blowing system and the establishment of Business Keeper AG. Over years of constant advancement, the BKMS[®] System has set a benchmark for today's corporate governance in companies and public authorities.

Kenan Tur is accredited auditor for the value management system according to the ZfW standard of the German Centre for Business Ethics and he is an active member of Transparency International Germany's whistle-blowing working committee. Furthermore, he is author of several professional articles and guest speaker at events organized within the frame of corruption-prevention and compliance management. Kenan Tur is co-founder of the Berlin Forum of the German Network for Business Ethics (Deutsches Netzwerk Wirtschaftsethik, dnwe) and confidentiality manager of the young-talents-promotion for the Foundation of German Business (Stiftung der Deutschen Wirtschaft, sdw).
